(3) provide for granting an opportunity for a fair hearing before the State agency to any individual whose claim for medical assistance under the plan is denied or is not acted upon with reasonable promptness;

(4) provide (A) such methods of administration (including methods relating to the establishment and maintenance of personnel standards on a merit basis, except that the Secretary shall exercise no authority with respect to the selection, tenure of office, and compensation of any individual employed in accordance with such methods, and including provision for utilization of professional medical personnel in the administration and, where administered locally, supervision of administration of the plan) as are found by the Secretary to be necessary for the proper and efficient operation of the plan, (B) for the training and effective use of paid subprofessional staff, with particular emphasis on the full-time or part-time employment of recipients and other persons of low income, as community service aides, in the administration of the plan and for the use of nonpaid or partially paid volunteers in a social service volunteer program in providing services to applicants and recipients and in assisting any advisory committees established by the State agency, and (C) that each State or local officer or employee who is responsible for the expenditure of substantial amounts of funds under the State plan, each individual who formerly was such an officer or employee, and each partner of such an officer or employee shall be prohibited from committing any act, in relation to any activity under the plan, the commission of which, in connection with any activity concerning the United States Government, by an officer or employee of the United States Government, an individual who was such an officer or employee, or a partner of such an officer or employee is prohibited by section 207 or 208 of Title 18;

(5) either provide for the establishment or designation of a single State agency to administer or to supervise the administration of the plan; or provide for the establishment or designation of a single State agency to administer or to supervise the administration of the plan, except that the determination of eligibility for medical assistance under the plan shall be made by the State or local agency administering the State plan approved under subchapter I or XVI of this chapter (insofar as it relates to the aged) if the State is eligible to participate in the State plan program established under subchapter XVI of this chapter, or by the agency or agencies administering the supplemental security income program established under subchapter XVI or the State plan approved under part A of subchapter IV of this chapter if the State is not eligible to participate in the State plan program established under subchapter XVI of this chapter;

(6) provide that the State agency will make such reports, in such form and containing such information, as the Secretary may from time to time require, and comply with such provisions as the Secretary may from time to time find necessary to assure the correctness and verification of such reports;

(7) provide safeguards which restrict the use or disclosure of information concerning applicants and recipients to purposes directly connected with the administration of the plan;

(3) The State's decision to deny payment may be made effective only after such notice to the public and to the facility as may be provided for by the State, and its effectiveness shall terminate (A) when the State finds that the facility is in substantial compliance (or is making good faith efforts to achieve substantial compliance) with the requirements for such a facility under this subchapter, or (B) in the case described in paragraph (1)(B), with the end of the eleventh month following the month such decision is made effective, whichever occurs first. (B) to document in the individual's medical record whether or not the individual has executed an advance directive;

(C) not to condition the provision of care or otherwise discriminate against an individual based on whether or not the individual has executed an advance directive;

(D) to ensure compliance with requirements of State law (whether statutory or as recognized by the courts of the State) respecting advance directives; and

(E) to provide (individually or with others) for education for staff and the community on issues concerning advance directives.

Subparagraph (C) shall not be construed as requiring the provision of care which conflicts with an advance directive.

(2) The written information described in paragraph (1)(A) shall be provided to an adult individual--

(A) in the case of a hospital, at the time of the individual's admission as an inpatient,

(B) in the case of a nursing facility, at the time of the individual's admission as a resident,

(C) in the case of a provider of home health care or personal care services, in advance of the individual coming under the care of the provider,

(D) in the case of a hospice program, at the time of initial receipt of hospice care by the individual from the program, and

(E) in the case of a health maintenance organization, at the time of enrollment of the individual with the organization.

(3) Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit the application of a State law which allows for an objection on the basis of conscience for any health care provider or any agent of such provider which as a matter of conscience cannot implement an advance directive.

(4) In this subsection, the term "advance directive" means a written instruction, such as a living will or durable power of attorney for health care, recognized under State law (whether statutory or as recognized by the courts of the State) and relating to the provision of such care when the individual is incapacitated.

(x) Physician Identifier system; establishment

The Secretary shall establish a system, for implementation by not later than July 1, 1991, which provides for a unique identifier for each physician who furnishes services for which payment may be made under a State plan approved under this subchapter.

(y) Intermediate sanctions for psychiatric hospitals

(1) In addition to any other authority under State law, where a State determines that a psychiatric hospital which is certified for participation under its plan no longer meets the requirements for a psychiatric hospital (referred to in section 1396d(h) of this title) and further finds that the hospital's deficiencies--

(A) immediately jeopardize the health and safety of its patients, the State shall terminate the hospital's participation under the State plan; or

(B) do not immediately jeopardize the health and safety of its patients, the State may terminate the hospital's participation under the State plan, or provide that no payment will be made under the State plan with respect to any individual admitted to such hospital after the effective date of the finding, or both.

(2) Except as provided in paragraph (3), if a psychiatric hospital described in paragraph (1)(B) has not complied with the requirements for a psychiatric hospital under this subchapter---

(A) within 3 months after the date the hospital is found to be out of compliance with such requirements, the State shall provide that no payment will be made under the State plan with respect to any individual admitted to such hospital after the end of such 3-month period, or

(B) within 6 months after the date the hospital is found to be out of compliance with such requirements, no Federal financial participation shall be provided under section 1396b(a) of this title with respect to further services provided in the hospital until the State finds that the hospital is in compliance with the requirements of this subchapter.

(3) The Secretary may continue payments, over a period of not longer than 6 months from the date the hospital is found to be out of compliance with such requirements, if--

(A) the State finds that it is more appropriate to take alternative action to assure compliance of the hospital with the requirements than to terminate the certification of the hospital,

(B) the State has submitted a plan and timetable for corrective action to the Secretary for approval and the Secretary approves the plan of corrective action, and

(C) the State agrees to repay to the Federal Government payments received under this Paragraph if the corrective action is not taken in accordance with the approved plan and timetable.

APPENDIX II

DEPARTMENT OF HUMAN SERVICES MANUAL §1062.9-1063.211

MEDICAL SERVICES FOR PERSONS UNDER 21 YEARS OF AGE

1063 Eligibility.

1063.1 Determination of Eligibility. Children who are categorically needy and receiving a money payment, children included in AFDC Foster Care, and children receiving a State Supplemental Payment (B or D), are pre-determined financially eligible for the Crippled Children's Program (CCP). Those children determined categorically needy under Title XIX and not receiving a money payment are also financially eligible for CCP.

For all other children, the worker reviews Forms PS-1 and MS-MA-CC-VR-MA-1 to verify financial eligibility for CCP. Financial eligibility is first determined using Title XIX income and resource standards. (see Section 1020). If the child is not Title XIX eligible, then CCP income and resource standards are applied. If the child is determined medically needy, using Title XIX income and resource standards, CCP income standards must then be used to determine eligibility for CCP services.

Documentation of income and resources and any other conditions which might effect the eligibility of this child to receive CCP services must be included in the case record.

A determination of medical eligibility for CCP must be made for all children.

1-63.2 Conditions of Eligibility.

1063.21 Financial Eligibility. A child is considered financially eligible for CCP if gross income does not exceed the CCP income standard (see Appendix-C-2-b).

1063.211 Consideration of Income for CCP Eligibility. All available income is considered in determining CCP eligibility. Available income is defined as all income "in hand" or under the control of the individual for the period of certification. If gross income exceeds the CCP income standard, the child is not income eligible for CCP. If gross income does not exceed the CCP income standard, the child is considered income eligible for CCP. Computation for determination of CCP income eligibility is made on Form MA-2.

Consideration of Resources for CCP Eligibility. Appendix C-2 is used to determine resource eligibility for CCP.

Eligibility for CCP is determined only after categorically and medically needy maximum reserves are exceeded. The same procedures for determining resources are used for both Title XIX and CCP (see Section 1020).

Only liquid resources in hand during the month(s) of services are considered in determining CCP eligibility. Non-liquid resources are disregarded for CCP eligibility purposes.

Liquid resources are defined as those resources that can be readily converted to cash. The following are considered liquid resources:

Cash, savings accounts, checking accounts
Savings certificates (C.D.'s)
Stocks, bonds
Trust funds
Gifts, inheritances
Insurance settlements

If liquid resources exceed the resource standard, any amount above the standard must be considered as a "spenddown" and must be applied toward an incurred medical expense before certification can be made for CCP. The client is notified of the spenddown amount by Form CCP-1, Notice for CCP Spenddown, and is advised that spenddown must be applied within thirty (30) days of the date of the notice. The case is ineligible for any month that liquid resources exceed the standard and client fails or refuses to apply the spenddown.

TIMING, METHOD AND MANNER OF RAISING FEDERAL QUESTION

TIMING, METHOD AND MANNER OF RAISING FEDERAL QUESTION

After the state district trial court issued its decision finding that DHS was estopped to find the trust assets as "available resources" DHS appealed the case to the Supreme Court. In DHS's Exhibit "C" to its Petition In Error, DHS asserted the following error:

> "The trial court erroneously found Ellen Barker's trust assets did not constitute a resource for purposes of eligibility for medical benefits."

In DHS's Brief In Chief to the Oklahoma Supreme Court, DHS raised the issue of Medicaid Qualifying Trusts arguing the MQT statute illustrated the intent of Congress to make discretionary trusts fully available. DHS also made this argument to demonstrate that the complexity of the program prohibited any DHS official from making a promise of continued eligibility as had been argued by the Trust Company. In its Brief at pages 16 and 17, DHS stated:

> Under both approved plans, Medicaid and CCP, the certification period for benefits in 1981 was for six (6) months. This is a maximum period of time a person could be eligible before recertification. At each recertification, the resource issue is again examined by DHS. Additionally, in 1981, appendix C-2 was used in both Medicaid and CCP (then CCU) programs to establish a resource limit. In 1981, the resource limit for both programs was $1,500.00. The monies Ellen Barker received in 1981, $818,000.00, were clearly a resource which would have immediately made Ellen Barker ineligible for assistance. Using these fairly simple rules of eligibility for all clients, it is impossible for any employee of DHS to guarantee eligibility or make an agreement to waive the regulations.
> To further illustrate the impossibility of the agreement Herbert Hyde sought to make, the Court should consider the provisions of 42 U.S.C. §1396(a)(K). This provision, known as the Medicaid qualifying trust provision, was passed by > Congress on April 7, 1986. This provision, although passed approximately five years after the alleged agreement, demonstrates the complexities of these government programs and how they change over time. Section (k) of 42 U.S.C. §1396a provides that if a trust is discretionary then the full amount of discretion is used against the beneficiary in determining eligibility. This statute applies to Medicaid eligibility when a trust is at issue whether or not the discretion is exercised. Thus, if it is possible in the trustee's discretion to pay one million dollars to the beneficiary, then this is assumed in accordance with the Medicaid Act in determining the client's eligibility.

> Because of the above cited regulations and the changes in the law, Herbert Hyde was powerless to make the type of agreement the Court suggests he made. DHS administered federal-state programs simply do not allow those with assets of close to one million dollars to be welfare eligible.

DHS's Brief In Chief before the Supreme Court of Oklahoma, Case No. 74,000, filed

February 14, 1990, pgs. 16-17 (footnote omitted).

After the case was assigned from the Oklahoma Supreme Court on October 26, 1990, pursuant to Rule 1.204(II) of the Rules for the Management of Workload in the Supreme Court, the Oklahoma Court of Appeals, Division III, issued a memorandum opinion on April 30, 1991. The decision reversed the ruling of the trial court finding DHS was not estopped to consider trust assets as resources. The Oklahoma Court of Appeals stated:

> An agreement by a DHS employee to accept two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000.00) for all past and future medical expenses of Ellen was ultra vires, or, outside the scope of his authority. We are unaware of any authority for such a contract, and none has been cited to us. The doctrine of estoppel has no application where a state employee's acts are beyond the scope of his employment. Ashland Oil, Inc. v. Corporation Commission, 595 P.2d 423 (Okl. 1979); State ex rel., Commissioners of the Land Office v. Phillips Petroleum Co., 258 P.2d 1193 (Okl. 1953); State ex rel., Commissioners of the Land Office v. Lamascus, 263 P.2d 426 (Okl. 1953). Those dealing with public officials are charged with notice of the limitations of the officials' powers. Gamill v. Shackelford, 480 P.2d 920 (Okl. 1970).

Trust Company, as guardian of Ellen's estate, may not be heard to complain of detrimental reliance upon the State's acts, as Trust Company and its predecessors knew, or should have known, that the agreement entered into by a DHS employee purportedly waiving any future consideration of Ellen's settlement funds as an "available resource" was illegal and therefore ultra vires.

Evidence was introduced to show an estate for Ellen in excess of one million dollars ($1,000,000.00) at the time of denial of benefits. The funds used by DHS to pay Ellen's medical claims contemplate an indigent person. We find the trial court to have erred when it entered an order holding DHS to be estopped from asserting that > the trust was an "available resource" to Ellen.

Trust Company of Oklahoma v. State of Oklahoma ex rel. DHS, Oklahoma Supreme Court Case No. 74,000, Decision of Oklahoma Court of Appeals p. 3 (April 13, 1991).

After the decision by the Oklahoma Court of Appeals, the Trust Company filed an application for certiorari with the Oklahoma Supreme Court on July 22, 1991. In the Petition for Certiorari, the Trust Company raised the estoppel issue and stated:

> "b. The memorandum opinion has decided a question of substance not heretofore determined by this Court. The Court of Appeals has in effect found that a discretionary trust for nonmedical purposes is an "available resource" which can be invaded by the beneficiary for payment of her medical expenses. Other jurisdictions have held that a discretionary trust is not an "available resource."

Thus, in its application for certiorari, the Trust Company raised the core issue of whether the trust constituted an available resource. On September 17, 1991, the Supreme Court accepted certiorari stating:

> "This order is entered subject to the inherent right of this Court, in its discretion, to order the filing of additional briefs if deemed necessary by the Court."

No other briefs were filed by the parties.

On December 17, 1991, the Oklahoma Supreme Court squarely ruled upon the issues presented for review to this Court. First, the Oklahoma Supreme Court ruled DHS had waived any argument regarding the payment of income from the trust. The Court did so by footnote after framing the issue in the case:

> A single issue of first impression is presented -- whether a trust, created for the primary purpose of providing nonmedical support and containing a provision allowing the trustee discretion to provide medical care if the beneficiary ceases to qualify for medical assistance programs, is an available resource for medical assistance > eligibility purposes. We find that a trust, created for the primary purpose of providing nonmedical support and containing a provision allowing the trustee discretion to provide medical care if the beneficiary ceases to qualify for medical assistance programs, is not an "available resource" under 42 U.S.C. §1396a(a)(17)(B)(Supp. 1990) or a "liquid resource in hand" within the meaning of DHS Manual §1063.212(11/1/86) for medical eligibility purposes.

> 1. The Department of Human Services does not allege on certiorari that distributions paid to Barker's mother rendered the minor child ineligible for medical benefits. Failure to raise the issue in the petition for certiorari is fatal to its consideration. Bayly, Martin & Fay, Inc. v. Pickard, 780 P.2d 1168, 1170 (Okla. 1989).

Trust Company of Oklahoma v. State ex rel. DHS, 825 P.2d 1295, 1296-97 (OKla. 1991).

The Oklahoma Supreme Court also ruled that the Ellen Barker Trust was not a Medicaid Qualifying Trust. This issue was ruled upon in footnote 31. The Court found that because the settlor was the Ganado School District (the tortfeasor) that the settlor was not the beneficiary. The Court stated:

> Two jurisdictions find that a trust fund is an available resource for medical eligibility purposes. Matter of Welfare of K.S., 427 N.W.2d 653, 659-60 (Minn. 1988); Arkansas Dept. of Human Services v. Donis, 280 Ark. 169, 655 S.W.2d 452, 454 (1983).
> Other cases in which courts have found that a trust is an available resource are distinguishable from the facts presented here. In 42 U.S.C. §1396a(k) (Supp. 1990), Congress has prohibited the creation of medicaid qualifying trusts for the purpose of meeting medical eligibility requirements. Section 1396a(k) defines a medicaid qualifying trust as a non-testamentary trust created by an individual or the individual's spouse under which the individual is the beneficiary of all or part of the trust payments. Here, the settlor is not the beneficiary, Barker, but the tortfeasor, Ganado School District.

Trust Company of Oklahoma, supra 825 P.2d at 1302 (Okla. 1991).

Finally, the Court ruled upon the core issue of whether the trust was a resource. The Court found that it agreed with the reasoning of the majority of jurisdictions stating:

> The courts holdings that a trust is not an available resource give effect to the settlor's intent, expressed through the trust instrument. They recognize that a settlor may want to supplement rather than to supplant public financial assistance. They reason that settlors attempting to provide for a handicapped person should not be required to either bankrupt estates or leave the disadvantaged party to the vagaries of public assistance programs. Additionally, these courts have not been willing to find that trust assets are available resources for medical assistance purposes when to do so would authorize a rapid and total dissipation of a trust estate intended to provide only supplementary benefits.

Because, absent a conflict with a principle of law, interpretation of a trust's terms are controlled by the settlor's intent, we find the reasoning of the majority persuasive. Here, the trust instrument provides that its primary purpose is to furnish Barker with "nonmedical equipment, care, education, training, rehabilitation, entertainment, transportation, or assistance needed to assure her of as natural and pleasant a life as is possible in her condition." The trustee is authorized to provide for medical expenses only if Barker ceases to qualify for public assistance. Trust instruments are generally construed in favor of their beneficiaries. If declarations of trust are clear and susceptible of only one meaning, the provisions of the trust govern its construction.

The trust instrument clearly indicates that its primary purpose is for nonmedical support. The trust was formed to provide those supplementary benefits not provided by public assistance. Requiring use of the trust assets until the income is depleted and the principal is reduced to $1,800.00 benefits the State, not Barker, and would nullify the settlor's intent. We > find that a trust, created for the primary purpose of providing nonmedical support and containing a provision allowing the trustee discretion to provide medical care if the beneficiary ceases to qualify for medical assistance programs, is not an "available resource" under 42 U.S.C. §1396a(a)(17)(B) (Supp. 1990) or a "liquid resource in hand" within the meaning of DHS Manual §1063.212 (11/1/86) for medical assistance eligibility purposes.

Trust Company of Oklahoma v. State ex rel. DHS, 825 P.2d at 1303-1304 (Okla. 1991) (citations omitted).

DHS then filed a Petition for Rehearing with the Oklahoma Supreme Court which raised a supremacy clause argument stating:

> Under the Supremacy Clause State Law Must Yield To The Intent of the Medicaid Act
> . . .
> DHS requests this Court to reconsider its opinion because implicit in the Court's ruling is the fundamental proposition that a private person, through a trust, can shelter resources by simply stating that as their intent. While this is permissible in solely private transactions, DHS asserts that when applying the purpose of the Medicaid Act against the state law on trusts, the federal law must prevail.

Using the plain wording of the statute, and its congressional intent, the state law must do major damage to clear and substantial federal interests. The federal share of the Medicaid program has risen from roughly 60% to 70% (of every dollar spent) in the last five years in Oklahoma. Congress's intent was to prevent those who are affluent from using trusts to qualify for assistance because of the scarce monetary resources of states to fund the Medicaid program. This Court's holding that in state law the settlor's intent governs even when the intent is clearly (sic) shelter monies, which would be considered available resources, does substantial harm to the federal interest. The message sent by this holding is that if a settlor intends that resources are unavailable, they simply can make them unavailable. This is the result of allowing state law to control the definition of "available resources."

APP. 3

DHS' Petition for Rehearing And Brief In Support of Petition for Rehearing, pgs. 7, 8 and 10 (filed January 27, 1992).

Finally, in its Petition for Rehearing, DHS requested the Court reconsider its decision regarding whether the trust was a Medicaid Qualifying Trust. DHS stated in its brief:

> Based upon this ruling, (Barham v. Rubin, 816 P.2d 965 (Haw. 1991)), DHS respectfully requests that this Court grant rehearing to reconsider its decision whether the trust at issue is an MQT and therefore the assets are available resources. The record reflects that in this case all of the assets of the trust do go to the beneficiaries of Ellen Barker. Also, despite the fact that the grantor is not Ellen Barker, in every personal injury settlement or award, this device attempts to shield the very real fact that these monies were Ellen Barker's and through the trust are Ellen Barker's. Ellen Barker and her mother were the named plaintiffs in the personal injury action and should be considered to be in constructive receipt of the funds awarded. Ellen Barker, through > her mother acting as her guardian, should be considered the "de facto" grantor for purposes of determining whether this trust is a (sic) MQT. To construe this trust otherwise permits Medicaid applicants to manipulate the federal law, shelter otherwise available resources and force the taxpayers of this country to pay for their medical care while other needy applicants must be turned away.

The Petition for Rehearing was denied by the Oklahoma Supreme Court on March 4, 1992.

CERTIORARI TO THE COURT OF APPEALS, DIVISION III

Honorable Charles H. Headrick, Trial Judge

The appellant, Oklahoma Department of Human Services (Department of Human Services), denied medical benefits based on the existence of a trust overseen by the appellee, Trust Company of Oklahoma (Trust Company/trustee). The trial court ruled in favor of the Trust Company. Although the Court of Appeals recognized that a settlement agreement entered by the Parties was meant to require payment of medical expenses by the Department of Human Services and to exclude the trust as an available resource, it reversed the trial court. It found that because the Department of Human Services' counsel was without authority to agree to the settlement agreement, it could not be estopped by its agent's actions. We find that a trust, created for the primary purpose of providing nonmedical support and containing a provision allowing the trustee discretion to provide medical care if the beneficiary ceases to qualify for medical assistance programs, is not an "available resource" under 42 U.S.C. §1396a(17)(B) (Supp. 199()) or a "liquid resource in hand" within the meaning of DHS Manual §1063.212 (11/1/86) for medical assistance eligibility purposes. The medical assistance case is reinstated from the date of termination subject to recertification as provided by the applicable program regulations.

FACTS

Ellen Lea Barker (Barker/ beneficiary/ minor child), is an Oklahoma resident. On September 20, 1980, she and her family were visiting in Arizona when their car was struck by a bus operated by the Ganado Public School District No. 19 (Ganado School District/settlor). Barker's injuries caused permanent paralysis from the neck down. In 1981, the minor child was transferred to Oklahoma Children's Memorial Hospital where she remained until June, 1986. Upon her dismissal, she moved home. Barker continues to use a ventilator, and she requires nursing assistance and other specialized medical equipment.

Barker's mother filed suit against the Ganado School District in Arizona (Arizona suit/action) on the minor child's behalf. During the first six months that Barker was hospitalized in Oklahoma, she incurred approximately $160,000 in medical expenses. In an effort to obtain reimbursement, the appellant, Oklahoma Department of Human Services (Department of Human Services), filed a lien against any proceeds which might be collected in the Arizona suit.[6]

[6]Title 56 O.S. 1981 §200 provides in pertinent part:

> "(a) Whenever the Department of Human Services pays medical expenses for or on behalf of a person who has been injured, or who has suffered a disease, as a result of the negligence or act of another person, the Department shall, if such injured or diseased person asserts or maintains a claim against such other person or tort feasor for damages on account of such injury or disease, have a lien to the

On May 18, 1981, the Arizona court entered an order approving the settlement of Barker's claim. Pursuant to the settlement, $818,940.00 were paid to the appellee, Trust Company of Oklahoma (Trust Company/ trustee)[7] to be held pursuant to a trust

Section 200 was amended in 1986. The quoted portion of §200 now appears in subsections (A) and (D) of the revised statute. However, the language remains substantially similar to that found in the 1981 version.

Section 83 was amended in 1984 to allow the use of annuities and structured settlements. The language of the 1981 version of §83 remains intact in the revised statute.

had received $818,940.00 to be held for Barker: and 2) the settlement was subject to a lien in favor of the Department of Human Services. The Trust Company requested an order allowing disbursement of $200,000.00 to the Department of Human Services in return for a full and complete disclaimer of any further or future interest in the trust estate. On the same date, the district court entered an order signed by the Department of Human Services' counsel approving the inventory of the trust and the trust agreement. The order also approved the disbursement to the Department of Human Services "in full and complete satisfaction and accord as to any lienable interest held by said Department in the funds arising from the litigation in Arizona."[8]

From 1981 to March, 1986, Barker received medicaid benefits through Title XIX--Grants to States for Medical Assistance Programs (Medicaid), 42 U.S.C. §1396 (1984)

[8]Because the Barker trust fund is not an available resource for medical eligibility purposes, we need not determine whether the facts and circumstances--Department of Human Services' participation in the settlement process--implicate a prevailing public interest which will except it from the general rule precluding the use of estoppel against the government. Spencer Dev. Co. v. Independent School Dist. No. I-89, 741 P.2d 477, 481 (Okla. 1987); Burdick v. Independent School Dist. No. 52, 702 P.2d 48, 53 (Okla. 1985). Noting that the doctrine of estoppel against the government has been decisively eroded in recent years, a federal district court found that estoppel would apply against the government in a situation in which an applicant for benefits was given wrong information for the purpose of filing an application. Coty v. Harris, 495 F.Supp. 452, 454 (W.D.Va. 1980). See also, Annot., "Modern Status of Applicability of Doctrine of Estoppel Against Federal Government & Its Agencies," 27 A.L.R.Fed. 702, 719-722 (1976).

et seq. Medical benefits were provided through the Oklahoma Crippled Children's Act (Crippled Children's Act/Program), 10 O.S. 1981 §175.1, et seq. from March 1986 until June 30, 1987. Under both programs, an applicant may hold a maximum of $1,800.00 in available resources to qualify for medical services.[9] When Barker's mother filed a re-application for benefits on March 14, 1985, she reported the existence of the trust. Medical coverage was switched from Title XIX to the Crippled Children's Program because of a belief that the trust made Barker ineligible for Medicaid. In 1985, the trust contained approximately $1,000,000.00. By June 30, 1987, the trust corpus consisted of approximately 1.2 million dollars.

On May 29, 1987, the Department of Human Services notified the Trust Company that Barker's medical assistance benefits would be terminated effective June 30.[10] The basis for termination was a determination that the trust fund constituted an available resource for purposes of the Crippled Children's Act.[11] The Trust Company requested an administrative hearing before the Appeals Unit to review the denial of benefits on June 29, 1987. A hearing was conducted before an administrative law judge on [12]The delay in the issuance of a decision was predicated on a request by the Trust Company for the Department of Human Services' records concerning the 1981 settlement negotiations. No record of these negotiations was ever located by the Department of Human Services.

[14]The trial court's decision is also found in the journal entry of judgment dated August 22, 1989, and filed on October 5, 1989.

[15]Title 75 O.S. 1981 §323 provides:

recognized that the 1981 settlement agreement was meant to require payment of medical expenses by the Department of Human Services and to exclude the trust as an available resource, it reversed the trial court. The Court of Appeals found that because the Department of Human Services' counsel was without authority to enter the settlement agreement, it could not be estopped by its agent's actions. On September 17, 1991, we granted certiorari to address a question of first impression in Oklahoma--whether a trust, created for the primary purpose of providing nonmedical support and containing a provision allowing the trustee discretion to provide medical care if the beneficiary ceases to qualify for medical assistance programs, is an available resource for medical eligibility purposes.

A TRUST, CREATED FOR THE PRIMARY PURPOSE OF PROVIDING NONMEDICAL SUPPORT AND CONTAINING A PROVISION ALLOWING THE TRUSTEE DISCRETION TO PROVIDE MEDICAL CARE IF THE BENEFICIARY CEASES TO QUALIFY FOR MEDICAL ASSISTANCE PROGRAMS, IS NOT AN "AVAILABLE RESOURCE" UNDER 42 U.S.C. §1396A(17)(B) (Supp. 1990) or "LIQUID RESOURCE IN HAND" WITHIN THE MEANING OF DHS MANUAL §1063.212 (11/1/86) FOR MEDICAL ELIGIBILITY PURPOSES.

The Trust Company asserts that the trust is not an available resource for medical assistance eligibility purposes. The Department of Human Services characterizes this issue as "interesting" but argues that a finding that it is not bound by estoppel moots the question. Without deciding the estoppel issue, we disagree. If the Department of Human Services was not estopped by the actions of its agent in the settlement proceedings,[16] Barker may still qualify for assistance if she meets the resource requirements under either Medicaid or the Crippled Childrens' Act.

Medicaid was enacted in 1965 as a cooperative federal-state endeavor designed to provide health care to needy individuals.[17] States are not required to of jurisdictions which have considered the issue of the availability of a trust fund for medical eligibility purposes have found that the trusts are not available resources for the determination of a beneficiary's eligibility for medical assistance.[30]

[30]Eight jurisdictions find that a trust is not an available resource for medical eligibility purposes. Miller v. Ibarra, see note 22 at 27, supra (Applying Colorado law and federal statute.); Lang v. Commonwealth, see note 22 at 1345, supra [Prior to the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's determination in Lang, a lower court had held that trusts were available resources for medical eligibility purposes. Stoudt v. Commonwealth, 76 Pa.Commw. 576, 464 A.2d 665-66 (1983). Since the decision in Lang, the Commonwealth courts have split on the issue of availability. Commonwealth Bank & Trust Co. v. Commonwealth, 128 Pa.Commw. 528, 563 A.2d 1299, 1301 (1983) (Indicating that the decision in Lang applied only to recipients of funds under the Mental Health & Mental Retardation Act of 1966.); Snyder v. Commonwealth, ___ Pa.Commw. ___, 556 A.2d 31, 33 (1989) (Noting that the Pennsylvania Supreme Court's decision that the trust in Lang was not an available resource for medical eligibility purposes was independent of its determination that the trust had no legal duty to provide support to the beneficiary.]; Zeoli v. Comm'r of Social Ser., 179 Conn. 83, 425 A.2d 553, 559, 21 A.L.R.4th 718, 727-28 (1979); Jansen v. See, Annot., "Eligibility for Welfare Benefits as Affected by Claimant's Status as Trust Beneficiary," 21 A.L.R.4th 729, 734-740 (1983).

On appeal, the Department of Human Services attempted to distinguish some of these rulings on the basis that they referred to medically needy recipients rather than to those included within the categorically needy definition. This distinction is not persuasive. The methodology employed to determine eligibility for services is the same for both groups. Hogan v. Hecker, 769 F.2d 886, 888 (1985); Hession v. Illinois Dept. of Public Aid, 129 Ill.2d 535, 136 Ill.Dec. 65, 544 N.E.2d 751, 754 (1989); 42 U.S.C. §1396a(10)(C)(i) provides in pertinent part:

[31]Two jurisdictions find that a trust fund is an available resource for medical eligibility purposes. Matter of Welfare of K. S., 427 N.W.2d 653, 659-60 (Minn. 1988); Arkansas Dept. v. Donis, 280 Ark. 169, 655 S.W.2d 452, 454 (1983).

Other cases in which courts have found that a trust is an available resource are distinguishable from the facts presented here. In 42 U.S.C. §1396a(k) (Supp. 1990),

Congress has prohibited the creation of medicaid qualifying trusts for the purpose of meeting medical eligibility requirements. Section 1396a(k) defines a medicaid qualifying trust as a non-testamentary trust created by an individual or the individual's spouse under which the individual is the beneficiary of all or part of the trust payments. Here, the settlor is not the beneficiary, Barker, but the tortfeasor, Ganado School District. 42 U.S.C. §1396a(k) provides in pertinent part:

> "Treatment of potential payments from Medicaid qualifying trusts assets are available resources. These courts have refused to interpret a settlor's intent to be that he/she wanted public support to be used as a vehicle for preserving trust assets.[32]

The courts holding that a trust is not an available resource give effect to the settlor's intent, expressed through the trust instrument. They recognize that a settlor may want to supplement rather than to supplant public financial assistance.[33]

Because, absent a conflict with a principle of law, interpretation of a trust's terms are controlled by the settlor's intent,[36] we find the reasoning of the minority persuasive. Here, the trust instrument provides that its primary purpose is to furnish Barker with "nonmedical equipment, care, education, training, rehabilitation, entertainment, transportation, or assistance needed to assure her of as natural and pleasant a life as is possible in her condition." The trustee is authorized to provide for medical expenses only if Barker ceases to qualify for public assistance.[37] Trust instruments are generally construed in favor of their beneficiaries.[38] If declarations of trust are clear and susceptible of only one meaning, the provisions of the trust govern its construction.[39]

The trust instrument clearly indicates that its primary purpose is for nonmedical support. The trust was formed to provide those supplementary benefits not provided by public assistance. Requiring use of the trust assets until the income is depleted

CONCLUSION

Economic reality demonstrates that the source of funds for public assistance programs is finite.[43] However, the principle of availability has served to prevent the States from attributing tangential sources of income or resources to an applicant for assistance.[44] The legislative history of §1396a(17)(B) indicates that the term "available" should be read as a limiting term. Only those assets actually available to the applicant may be considered. States may not over evaluate available resources.[45] Here, the
